

Memento Vivere: Living the Life One Has to Live

Memento vivere is Latin for ‘remember to live.’ In this intensive, life philosophy course, Benjamin Bennett Carpenter, PhD, MA, will be coaching students through the practice of examining one’s life, using tools and knowledge from the ancients and present-day sciences & arts – all towards the purposes of survival, well-being, and inspiration – to live the life one has to live, now.

Mondays, June 3, 10, 17, & 24
7:30 – 8:30pm

Sessions held in the Red Door Classroom
at Birmingham Unitarian Church
38651 Woodward Ave
Bloomfield Hills, MI 48301

Price: $250 for 4 sessions
Student discounts apply

Send RSVP & questions to: bbennettcarpenter@gmail.com (email) or 248 854 8340 (call or text)

Benjamin Bennett Carpenter’s work engages rhetorical and psychological strategies within cultural niches (www.benjaminbennettcarpenter.net). Bennett-Carpenter is the author of two books on existential-humanistic topics, holds degrees in religion & culture (PhD) and clinical psychology (MA), and teaches courses in writing & rhetoric, creativity, and interdisciplinary studies at Oakland University. Dr Bennett-Carpenter provides project consulting, life philosophy, and personal coaching to individuals.

This Memento Vivere course is a life philosophy, personal coaching class. The class is independent, secular, and pluralistic; it is open to people of all faiths, no faith, or anyone in-between; it is not affiliated with Birmingham Unitarian Church or any other organization.

This program is not sponsored by and may not reflect the views of the Birmingham Unitarian Church.